23 activities therein are in accordance with a management plan duly approved by the 24 Secretary and would not induce severe soil erosion and surface run-off: Provided, further,
25 That no CBFM agreement shall be issued over areas or portions thereof covered by 26 ancestral domain titles without the prior informed consent of the concerned indigenous 27 cultural community.

28

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
House Bill No. 2189

Introduced by Honorable Rufus B. Rodriguez

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This bills mandates the development and adoption of a sustainable forest management strategy based on rational allocation of forestland uses and promotion of land use practices that increase productivity and conserve soil, water, and other forestland resources, protection of existing forest resources and conservation of biodiversity, rehabilitation or development of denuded areas to expand the forest resource base and promote food production activities.

As of December 31, 2004, the Philippines have a total land area of 30,000,000 hectares, 52.8% of which, or 15,851,473 hectares classified as forest land. The Southern Tagalog Region has the biggest area of forest land, with 2,178,871 hectares or 7% of total forest land found in said area. The province of Palawan having the biggest area of forest land among all provinces in the Philippines, with 1,057,499 hectares or 3.5% of the total forest land found in said province.

As of year 2000, the leading cause of forest disturbance is illegal cutting, with a total of 4,290 hectares of land destroyed, the highest incidence since the 1990s. There were two major causes in the decline of stocks of forest resources during the period 1988 to 1994. The country lost resources worth P48.6 billion to harvesting and other logging activities, while the conversion of forestland to non-forest use accounted for P20.4 billion in losses. Also contributing to the decline in stocks were forest fires, accounting for P439.7 million, and the natural death of trees (stand mortality) which accounted for P5.9 billion. Demand for agricultural land is also one of the main reasons that forests continue to be erased at the rate of 13 million hectares a year. By 2005, forests were estimated at 47% of the total land, from 51% in 1990. From 1990 until 2000, the rate of deforestation of the Philippines is 1.4%. The Philippines is the highest among the Southeast Asian Nations together with Myanmar with the same rate.

Clearly, there is therefore a need to ensure that our forests are restored to its old grandeur and richness. This bill aims to address such need by implementing a plan for sustainable forest management guided by the following principles:

1. Watershed as the basic forestland management unit.- Forestlands shall be conserved, developed, and managed utilizing watershed as the basic management unit and under the concepts of sustainable and multiple-use management, including the conservation of bio-diversity;
2. Multi-sectoral participation.- The participation of all sectors of society in sustainable forestland conservation, management, and development shall be promoted. Equitable sharing of the benefits derived from forestlands shall be ensured at all times;

3. Community-based forest management (CBFM) as a principal strategy.- Vesting access rights and responsibilities to forest resident families, local communities, and indigenous peoples to undertake the management and development of appropriate forestland resources on a sustainable basis shall have precedence over other strategies;
4. Protection of forestlands and natural resources as priority concern.- The protection of forestlands, especially protected areas and the natural resources therein shall be given priority concern in order to ensure environmental stability, enhance biological diversity, increase productivity, and provide economic benefits;
5. Reforestation as a priority measure.- Economic and ecological reforestation shall be given priority emphasis in order to rehabilitate and restore the usefulness or productivity of denuded and degraded forestlands as well as increase the income of communities concerned;
6. Security of tenure of stakeholders.- In pursuance of the principles of sustainable and multi-use forest management and equitable access to forest resources, a secured tenure shall be guaranteed to stakeholders concerned; and
7. Professionalism in forest service.- A dynamic, professional and people-oriented forest service shall be established and fully supported by the government.

There have been a wide range of players involved in forest rehabilitation in the Philippines in the last decades including the national government, NGOs, private companies, LGUs, local communities and private land owners. Ensuring long-term sustainability appears to be one of the biggest challenges facing many of the initiatives.

This proposed measure aims to ensure that our forests meet the needs of the present generation with compromising the ability of the future generations to meet their own needs.

In view of the foregoing, immediate passage of this bill is earnestly requested.
