Introduced by Representative Herminio Harry L. Roque Jr.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), also known as Pervasive Developmental Disorders (PDDs), causes severe and pervasive impairment in thinking, feeling, language, and the ability to relate to others. This disorder is usually first diagnosed in early childhood, and range from a severe form, called autistic disorder, through pervasive development disorder not otherwise specified (PDD-NOS), to a much milder form, Asperger syndrome. It also includes two rare disorders, Rett syndrome and childhood disintegrative disorder.¹

There is no single best treatment for children with ASD. Decisions about the best treatment, or combination of treatments, should be made by the parents with the assistance of experts. In some cases, however, the cost of treatment is prohibitive. Hence, this bill seeks to provide parents and their children access to treatment by requiring health insurers to provide full coverage not only for treatment but also the prevention, early detection, and diagnosis of ASD.²
