HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

EIGHTEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

HOUSE BILL NO. 7335

Introduced by REPRESENTATIVE MANUEL ANTONIO F. ZUBIRI

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The COVID19 pandemic that is currently ravaging the health of the Filipino and the economy has opened a lot of realizations of what comprises the economy of the nation. The recent slump of 16.5% by the economy further pushed the poor and marginalized to poverty as unemployment and lack of access to basic necessities increased.

As a result, stimulus packages are being drawn by the government to jump start the economy while balancing the safety of the people. To ensure that stimulus packages benefit the poor and marginalized, businesses that operate not purely for profit or businesses that support the poor and marginalized by allotting a huge portion of their revenues for such sectors need to be supported by the government.

The Poverty Reduction through Social Entrepreneurship (PRESENT)Bill has been pending in Congress since 2012. And this bill has been filed for this congress in both the Senate and House of Representatives. This growing recognition of the importance of social enterprises as partners of government in making good its commitment to accelerate the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals of zero poverty, food security, reduced inequality, women's economic empowerment and building resilient and sustainable communities reflect the importance of this bill.

Before the pandemic, social enterprises numbered around 164,000 representing more than 15% of all enterprises in the country. They come in the form of cooperatives and associations of farmers, agrarian reform beneficiaries, fishers, indigenous people, women, persons with disability and overseas Filipino workers and their families; microfinance institutions serving the enterprising and entrepreneurial poor; trading development organizations practicing ethical and fair trade; and social-mission driven corporations and foundations providing decent jobs and services, sustainable livelihoods and access to markets to women and men small producers and various segments of the rural and urban poor.

An ongoing study of the Institute for Social Entrepreneurship in Asia (ISEA) provides an indication of the impact of COVID19 on these social enterprises: More than 50% have experienced a major downturn; close to 40% have experienced some downturn and less than 10% managed to sustain their operations. Those who sustained their operations were mainly in agriculture and essential services such as rice trading and social enterprise accounting.
Amidst the challenges of Enhanced Community Quarantine, a number of social enterprises found ways to sustain their operations or pursue innovations. These included the production and distribution of personal protective equipment and face masks to provide livelihood to their partner craft communities; cooperative-to-cooperative trading to provide mutual support to their farmer-members and sustain the sales of their respective agricultural products; engaging the Department of Agriculture in securing and distributing open pollinated varieties of corn and vegetable seeds to strengthen community-based seed banking; continuing with organic and sustainable agriculture production and marketing; implementing a moratorium on loan collections; shifting to e-marketing and/or door-to-door delivery of their products to reach households and sustain or expand their customer base; shifting to social microfinance by transforming all loans as capital invested with their clients as business partners; and developing proposals for responsive relief and recovery measures that government and private sector players can implement in partnership with social enterprises.

With the efforts of social enterprises and what they contribute directly to the people, it is clear that a National Poverty Reduction through Social Entrepreneurship Program is needed, a support package in the form of hybrid financing—a combination of loans and grants—to enable the creation of new and the recovery of existing social enterprises, towards effectively engaging the poor as workers, suppliers, clients, co-owners and partners in economic recovery as well as tax breaks and incentives. As enshrined in this bill, this will create decent jobs and sustainable livelihoods in strategic economic subsectors and value chains where the poor are concentrated and could be major players. This will allow them to use their hard-earned cash in recovery efforts and building back better.

In view of the foregoing, the immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.

MANUEL ANTONIO F. ZUBIRI
Representative
Third District, Bukidnon
