SEVENTEENTH CONGRESS
Third Regular Session
HOUSE BILL NO. 8505

INTRODUCED BY REPRESENTATIVE ALFRED VARGAS

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Recent developments have pointed out the inadequacy of the local fish market to supply the increasing demand of a growing populace. Such is the situation that the low supply has contributed to the historically high inflation rate.

On the supply side, we have, scattered along coastal communities in the country, large numbers of small scale fisher folk, subsistence fisherman and fry-gatherers, whose individual and collective efforts are dwarfed by the more organized work of big and commercial fishing operations.

Empowering these marginal fishermen must be an urgent objective of the national government. As is the situation today, these small fishermen have inadequate and substandard fishing gear and equipment that could only allow them to fish limited distances using dilapidated bancas and overused fishing nets. On worse days when inclement weather prevents them from venturing out to sea, their families suffer. On better days when catch is abundant, they have no access to cold storage facilities that would enable them to preserve their catch to sell for better prices.

Organizing these marginal fishermen into cooperatives would help tremendously. Having strength in members they could, through small gradual individual contributions and pool resources to acquire the needed fishing gear and equipment. Governmental action can also facilitate for them the acquisition of motorized bancas, cold storages, and market linkages one they are organized.

Given the above premises, the approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
